Chamber hosts first ever golf tourney

ELK POINT AND DISTRICT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE president Jonny Nielsen presented the top prize of gift bags from the Town of Elk Point to five-under-par teammates Matt Lett, Leo deMoissac, Tim and Hailey Mahdiuk at the chamber's first-ever Fun Scramble golf tournament on Sunday. The tournament was originally planned for mid-June, but was delayed due to a very busy June calendar.

Elk Point and District Chamber of Commerce hosted its first-ever Fun Scramble golf tournament on Sunday, with Mother Nature earning praise from tournament chair Dwayne Yaremkevich for a beautiful sunny afternoon for the event.

Seven teams took to the links in the event, which included a round of golf and an excellent steak supper, leading up to the presentation of prizes donated by member businesses.

An out-of-town team made up of Leo deMoissac, Tim and Hailey Mahdiuk and Matt Lett brought in the best score of the day with a five-under-par to win first place and gift bags donated by the Town of Elk Point. The fifth place team, made up of Dustin Yaremkevich, Amanda Turigan, Shaun and Coralee Pavoll took home golf balls from Hahn Welding, while the last place team, Brooke Yaremchuk, Jake Magosse and Jay Duffee won cups and tokens from AJ's Car Wash.

All nine holes had a prize to offer, although there were no takers for the Servus Credit Union $5,000 Hole In One award on Hole 3, where a stiff west wind kept all but two players from reaching the green with their drive. The Closest to the Pin prize was also featured on that hole, with Dwayne Yaremkevich edging out deMoissac for a drill set from Jonny's Electric.

The Men's Long Drive for Hole 1, with tools from Bumper to Bumper went to Jarrett Quinney, the Drive in Right Bush on Hole 2 for a camp stove from Elk Point Truss to Kalin Verigan, and the Longest Putt on Hole 4, for a Truck-In 2000 gift certificate to Lorraine Quinney. Barb Anderson celebrated her birthday with the win of a golf bag from St. Paul and District Co-op with her putt on Hole 5.

Northern Lights hosts 'Libraries Reborn 2016'

KEYNOTE SPEAKER Kathryn Hotte emphasized the importance of customer service in libraries.

"We weren't going to have a conference this year, but we heard from our members that more training was needed," Northern Lights Library System's executive director Julie Walker told the crowd of vendors and participants at the Sept. 16 NLLS conference, entitled 'Libraries Reborn 2016.' Walker praised her staff with "making it all happen" and putting together the one-day conference.

Northern Lights president Arnold Hanson added his thanks to the staff for facilitating the conference, and said "there have been a few changes in the past year and a half. We hope the changes have helped you." Hanson told the librarians in the crowd that they "touch people's lives. You may be the most important people in your communities. Thank you for all you do throughout the year and for your participation in the conference."

It might have been shorter than the system's past conferences, which traditionally started on Thursday and wound up at noon Saturday, but this one was packed with 16 sessions on topics ranging from library board survival to the use of comics in the library, from creating an original summer reading program to finding funding to keep the libraries growing and thriving. One session, "Communicating in 90 Minutes: The Work Practice Inventory" was presented by Kathryn Hotte, small business advisor of the Rural Alberta Business Centre in Cold Lake, who was also the conference's lunchtime keynote speaker.

Public Services manager Colette Poitras introduced Hotte and said she "makes the difficult seem easy and the boring seem fun. She has a creative way of learning." Hotte recently instructed a workshop at Northern Lights, she added.

"I'm astounded by the Northern Lights website," Hotte said. "I just didn't know there was so much information in it, and I'm certainly going to use it. You need to market it, and tell people what an amazing product you have available for free."

Hotte worked for Bata Shoes for 22 years, some of those as the company's international training director, and later started her own training company to teach customer service, which she feels is the key to success for any business.

Healthcare Centre renos to start in October

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point's Interagency Health and Wellness Committee got back to work last week after the summer break, and members heard that renovations in the Elk Point Healthcare Centre's laboratory and Pediatric ward are set for an October start, now that the roofing project is completed.

The wait for a third doctor is still ongoing, and with the potential addition to the staff required to spend three months in an assessment program with a doctor in another community, it will likely be at least February before the new practice is in place.

A report submitted by Kristin Pelechok states that staffing of both RNs and LPNs is good at this time. She said that volunteer drivers are needed for the Long Term Care handi-bus and asked for a timeline on lighting repairs at the Elk Point Airport. This item is currently in the hands of the Province, with the required repairs to make the airport usable 24 hours per day estimated at $1 million.

Public Health's Christal Brodziak was unable to attend the meeting but sent along the information that flu clinic dates for Elk Point are set for Oct. 24 and 27, from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. both days at the Elk Point Seniors' Recreation Centre.

Traffic concerns are not usually on the Interagency agenda, but it was agreed that safety is definitely part of wellness. Painting of centre lines on Main Street is still on Public Works' to-do list for the fall and will offer a visible reminder to motorists not to cross the line to enter or exit angle parking spaces on the west side of the street. A need was also expressed for crossing lights to assist pedestrians who must cross Highway 41 with its heavy load of traffic.

Concerns were brought forward that some of the Long Term Care staff are not conversing in English while interacting with the residents, and will be brought to the attention of the senior staff.

The County of St. Paul and Elk Point FCSS had a very well attended Information Night, with good feedback, and the recent series of 1 pad courses have also been a success, to the extent that more may be planned in the future. The annual late-fall Seniors' event is slated for St. Paul on Nov. 22.

Mayor Parrish Tung reported on a Regional Health Care Initiative meeting in Bonnyville, which was attended by local mayors, reeves and doctors, all seeking Provincial support to establish regional health services at the various hospitals in the area.

Kyla Cameron of the Alberta Brain Injury Network shared an array of resources available for both Network clients and seniors to access if needed.

Canada Day Committee gets an early start on Canada 150

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

It's only September, but planning is already underway for Elk Point's celebration of Canada's 150th birthday next July 1.

The Canada Day Committee met last week to go over the day's proposed events, and made quick decisions on entertainment for the youngsters, including a clown who is a balloon artist, bounce castles and face painting. The dunk tank was a big hit with the teens and preteens, and will probably be back in the 2017 lineup, but further thought is being given to other events for this age group, which last year included Speed Pitch and Alien Invasion. Other games are also available and are being considered as alternates.

The possibility of moving the pancake breakfast up to the arena was sent to the Friends of the Library for their input, but while some felt it would remove the need to relocate picnic tables later in the day, others pointed out that the next item on everyone's agenda would be the parade, which travels through the downtown area just one block from the arena.

Logistics regarding the parade, including requests from the public that the route be made safer for the contingent of children on bikes leading the way, were also brought to the committee's attention. Last year, traffic was still accessing the streets making up the parade route, to the extent that both the cyclists and floats had to pull over to the side of the street because of oncoming traffic. A streamlined method for indicating what judging category each parade entry should belong in is also needed, as the judges have at times had difficulty determining this. An expanded lineup of judges would also be beneficial, the committee agreed.

Elk Point 4-H Multi Club found that having their Achievement Day was a good fit with the Canada Day celebration this past year and will discuss their participation again in 2017 when they hold their organizational meeting.

The outdoor skating rink will likely take on a street fair atmosphere on July 1, with the business vendors relocated out there and invited to bring their own shelters and canopies if they wish. There will be no charge to the vendors. Designated spaces will be allotted for the food vendors, who the committee hopes will be serving "fair food," including cotton candy and other treats.

Some events that have been part of Canada Day in past years may be missing from the lineup, including the Survivor Race and the Canada Day Idol, and the committee is checking out some exciting new events that may take their place in the schedule. In a throwback to the celebration's early years, a family dance or beerfest on the July 1 evening is a potential addition, but for sure, the evening will end with a fireworks display.

With more than nine months to fine-tune their plans, the committee should definitely be able to make Canada's 150th birthday the best celebration yet.

"There are companies that really get it," she told the library community, quoting Walmart founder Sam Walton as saying, "There's only one boss: the customer." Massive companies such as TD Financial and the online shoe and clothing store Zappos, and small companies like a privatized American department of motor vehicles license office in North Carolina have all become known for their outstanding customer service, she said. Noting that customer service and marketing go hand in hand, she advised the audience that it is essential to "identify the demographic groups you're working with and tailor your approach to fit," whether those groups are traditionalists, baby boomers, millennials, Generation X or Generation Y.

She offered special tips on customer service for non-profit groups, emphasizing that "you still need to treat clients as if they were paying customers. You need to treat donors right so they become repeat donors, and volunteers are also your clients, they give you their time." Services are also selling, she said, "and you still need customer service, it changes the members' minds about the value of what they're getting. Whether you call them clients, customers or guests, they all want excellent customer service. Great customer service is essential and if you realize that, you will achieve results."

Like businesses, libraries have competition, such as bookstores and online book vendors, she said. "Everybody has competition. You are the one who makes the difference and keeps them coming back. Create a welcoming environment and generate fans. Satisfy every customer, above and beyond their expectations. The best way to find yourself is to lose yourself in the service of others."

FGM golfers compete at Provincials

Fore.....sure, its been a long time since our F. G. Miller High School has sent a golf team to provincials, maybe as many as 15 or 20 years, but this year is the year. Nick 'Sparky' Anderson, Kaiden 'K-Rock' Evans Anderson, Parker 'Park Avenue' Allen and 'In-Zane' Cribbens won the Zone 7 team championship last week in St. Paul, qualifying them to play in the provincial finals down in Lethbridge. The provincial final actually started yesterday and is continuing today. Good luck boys. Bring home the gold!

field. 'Danny Boy' Cardinal was in on a whole bunch of tackles. The Bengals have one more league game this coming Saturday in Wainwright, then they have the Thanksgiving weekend off before starting the playoffs. The team is looking really good at this point to finish second in the league.

Meanwhile down at the rink, work is progressing on the new condensers, and we should be up and running in a day or two. A big thanks to Jason Pankiw who donated the materials for the construction of the condenser stand, to Hahn Welding for the donation of welding up the stand, and to B and R Eckels for all the transportation and crane work. I also want to personally thank John Theriault for donating his time to change the rad in the Zamboni this past Saturday. He was there for about half the day and it saved us a pile of cash.

And a big happy birthday going out today to hockey mom Jennifer Crawford, the mother of two very promising young talented players, Storm player 'Syd the Kid' and Avalanche player 'Top Gunner'.

And now for the K.A. Campbell quote of the week. "Baseball and football are very different games. In a way, both of them are easy. Football is easy if you're crazy as heck. Baseball is easy if you've got patience. They'd both be easier for me if I were a little more crazy and a lot more patient." Last week's answer to "Spectacular achievements are always preceded by unspectacular preparations." - Roger Staubach.

Further Ed up and running for fall

VICKI BROOKER

Elk Point Further Education's new semester of classes is underway, with a list that includes art, crafts, photography, computer use, fitness, literacy and more. Coordinator Verona Lea Flanders told the Further Education Council at their Sept. 13 meeting that some of the courses are already getting underway, including No Bounce Fitness, Stretch and Tone and Dance Fitness, as are the weekly sessions of sewing and charity quilting.

Computer-related courses for the fall and early winter include Basic Word Processing, taught by Daphne Schnurer, and Blogging, Ipad and Iphone basics taught by Marvin Bjornstad, who also will instruct a pair of Retirement Planning workshops.

Mike Van der Hoek has a pair of photography courses on the list, Camera Use and Photography Basics followed up by Advanced Camera Use.

Literacy comes into play with Books for Babies and Rhyme Time, both in conjunction with Elk Point Municipal Library, while for the adults there is a 10-session course in English as a Second Language.

Art classes by Shirley Kinneberg, covering a wide range of techniques and media included the latest Alcohol Ink, and a full-day Watercolor Painting workshop with Donna Chamberland are also on the calendar, while crafts range from a Fall Arrangement taught by Daphne Schnurer to Stamping for Christmas with Judy Clerk. Donna Bassett will be instructing Quilting Basics as well as the creation of both Fall and Christmas Table Runners.

Winding up the course lineup are a Standard First Aid course with Danielle Garnier, and the semi-annual Potluck Show and Tell on November 24.

Elk Point Further Education is now on Facebook and has a blog, as well as being linked to the Town of Elk Point website, Flanders noted.

The Further Ed Council plans to give the classroom they've called home since the 1980s needs a fresh new look with much needed fall facelifts to include interior painting and replacement of flooring.

Saluting a great adventure

Alberta has been traversed by numerous explorers over the past two and a half centuries, from David Thompson and our own Peter Fidler on up, but among the latest of these are two former Elk Point area residents, Sheila Thompson and Jim Hawkins, who have spent the past summer exploring the branches of the Trans Canada Trail that criss-cross Alberta.

Their adventure started at the North Saskatchewan River crossing of the Saskatchewan - Alberta border, south of Onion Lake, just a day after Thompson introduced her project to students at Heinsburg School back in early June, and ended at the Alberta-BC gate on the Elk Pass Trail approximately three months later.

For the next few weeks, we are honoured to share some of the couple's adventures as they discovered the diversity of our province along Alberta's portions of the Trans Canada Trail.

Hope you enjoy this unique travelogue!

RECREATION CORNER

Scarecrow contest back for another October

recreation@elkpoint.ca
Review contributor

The Town of Elk Point's Scarecrow Contest is BACK! This was so much fun last year and so many residents got involved we just had to bring it back. It's a pretty simple contest to participate in and have some fun.

From October 1 to 21, decorate and place a scarecrow (or two or three) in your yard. Then text, call or email me 780-207-5898 or recreation@elkpoint.ca with your address.

On the weekend of October 21 to 23 the judging committee will be going around town to check the scarecrows, then the winners will be announced in the October 25th edition of the Review!

There will be fun prizes and categories for residential and business.

The scarecrows will be up for the first ever Outdoor Leisure Show that the Lions Club is hosting. That event, held at the Allied Arts Centre on October 22nd, is still looking for a few vendors. If you'd like to showcase your products or services, call Jonny at 780-614-1796 for further information or to book an indoor or outdoor display location.

AND - final call for people interested in playing Pickleball. It's the fastest growing sport in North America and a lot of fun! It's much like tennis, but on a smaller court, with a smaller net. Players use paddles and wiffle balls instead of rackets and tennis balls.

If enough people are interested I will bring in an instructor to see if you enjoy the sport and help set up a league.

If you have any ideas for fun recreational activities in our community, please email me any time, recreation@elkpoint.ca

HITTING THE TRAIL...

A summer on Alberta's trails

SHEILA THOMPSON
Trans Canada Trail explorer

Sitting on Alberta Trail Net's Board of Directors for many years, I came to realize I must get out and see our Alberta trails, from ground level. This summer I set out to explore the lengths of Alberta's Trans Canada Trail in preparation for Canada 150 in 2017. Thank you to my husband, Jim Hawkins, for joining me on this adventure. We had tons of fun. Thanks also to the board members and staff of Alberta Trail Net for their support. A special thank you goes out to all the trail heroes we met along the way, people who feel that historic trails should be part of our legacy. These trail builders give their personal time to open and maintain new trails. We had a wonderful summer exploring Alberta through the 'lens' of trails, in all its dimensions.

Most provinces have a fairly straightforward TCT which enters the province, meanders a bit, then leaves to the next province. Not so Alberta. We have the distinction that all three branches of the trail converge in Alberta - in Athabasca to be precise, 3,000 km in total. Here are my impressions from a summer on the trail.

Think of Alberta's TCT as a jigsaw puzzle and each trail system is a piece of that puzzle.

The North Saskatchewan River - AB-SK Gateway: NSR/Iron Horse Trail/Victoria Trail: This is a big piece of the puzzle, nearly complete from the border to River Valley Alliance at Lamoureux.

OUR SASQUATCH FRIEND AUSSIE at Pumpkin Park, Smoky Lake.

There are historic sites up and down the river and many opportunities to combine canoeing downstream with biking back to your start point. This is an excellent section of the trail for learning Alberta's story and enjoying some paddling & pedaling. We started our journey on International Trails Day at the Alberta - Saskatchewan border, on the North Saskatchewan River, on Onion Lake Cree Nation. Much of Alberta's history came in on this river and on the trails beside it.

River Valley Alliance - A wonderful park system in search of a name. RVA strives for continuous trail from the aforementioned Lamoureux to: Fort Saskatchewan, Sturgeon & Strathcona Counties, Edmonton, Leduc & Parkland Counties, all the way upstream to Devon. The trail passes every urban amenity, with lots of natural trails along the river and ravines. This, too, is a sizable piece of Alberta's puzzle.

Athabasca Landing Trail (The 100 Mile Portage) - Head back to Lamoureux. ALT goes north along the Sturgeon River to the gentle Tawatinaw Valley. Start at the Tawatinaw Ski Hill, then travel north on Hwy. 2A. This pretty much follows the original trail. We drove because this is a gravel roadway - although it was very quiet when we were there. This piece has cute little towns in the bottom of the valley. Meanwhile, the Town of Athabasca is building the north end of ALT. Soon they will complete a pedestrian bridge over the Tawatinaw River, where it flows into the Athabasca. Another Canada 150 commemoration?

CHARMING PERRYVALE in the Tawatinaw Valley.

As the sun goes down on the Bengals...

A Bengals player makes a grab for the ball as they take on Cold Lake late Saturday afternoon in a game that would stretch into the dusk and earn them another win to add to their record in a successful 2016 season.

Violet E. McFadyen
April 25, 1916
September 28, 2011Five sad and lonely years have passed since you were called away.Memories of you bring us comfort always and our love for you shall never falter.
In our hearts you will forever be our wonderful, cherished, loving and kind Mother.
Your gentle voice, your radiant smile, your kind and helpful ways are among memories
we hold so dear.Your 100th birthday this year would have been a milestone occasion.At this time of year, we have fond memories of you preparing entries for the fair, taking care of your garden - canning, freezing, pickling, making jams and jellies,
looking after your lovely flowers, and so much more.You made it all look so easy and we know you did it for our family.Everyday of every season, special memories remind us of you, our Dear Mother,
our best friend,
our role model. Lovingly remembered
and sadly missed,
